

ENTERTAINMENTS.

SACRED CONCERT.—A good house greeted Levy and his company last night at Wheeler's, when they appeared in sacred concert. The entertainment was one of the finest musical events of the season. Levy was superb, Steinberg, the pianist, grand, and O'Mahoney, the basso, excellent. The entire company is strong in all its parts, and are never better than when in a sacred concert.

TWAIN AND CABLE.—To-night Mark Twain and George Cable will give readings at Wheeler's. Twain is famous as a humorist and can better interpret his fun than any man living. Cable, famous as a novelist, is becoming no less famous as a reader; instance the following from the Brooklyn Eagle: "It is only at rare intervals that a Brooklyn audience has enjoyed his equal as a masterly delineator of character, and as a painter in words of those quaint yet original types of humanity which belong to a by-gone period. The men and women, slaves and Creoles, whom he portrays, are not fantastic creations of an imaginative brain, but illustrations of real flesh and blood, talking, thinking and acting as if they had been unconsciously transported from the plantations of the sunny South and the streets of the gay Louisiana capital to a Northern latitude."
